MONEY IS THE ROOT

Ever hear the statement: "Where am I going to get $80 for next quarter's tuition?" or "Gosh, I sure hope the GI Bill comes through before registration day. I'll have to take out another student loan if it doesn't."

Financial worries are probably the largest problem facing college students today, not only at Brigham Young University, but throughout the United States.

STUDY REVEALS

In a study (Changing Times magazine, March '57) of 15,000 college students enrolled in over 100 universities, it was found that college expenses averaged about $1,600 a year per student. According to this report, it costs $6,400 on the average to send a student to college for four years, covering all expenses.

Where does this amount of money come from? It was reported in Changing Times that most college undergraduates receive about half their current income from parents. About 11,000 of the 15,000 students studied received $840 a year from parents.

STUDENTS WORK

Two-thirds of the men and half the women earn an average of $890 each year, including summers. Four out of ten students get an average of $765 from long term savings. More than 20 per cent receive some form of scholarship, averaging about $430 for men and $260 for women a year.

Of the group studies, only 1,100 borrowed money to gain their educations, while fewer than 1,000 received veteran's benefits.

Is it all worth it? With so much struggling for the necessary $6,400 to get through school, many get discouraged. Especially, when the Wall Street Journal reports that waiters at Lake Tahoe make as much as $200 weekly in the summer and waitresses rake in $75-$125 a week at many resorts.

SPIRITS RISE

But spirits rise when seeing an editorial (Salt Lake Tribune, May 29, 1957) that reveals reports of graduate engineers starting at salaries up to $525 monthly and non-technical graduates starting as high as $450. (Unlike the high-paid waiters, these grads have full time positions, not just summer jobs.)

The Wall Street Journal also tells how growing numbers of high caliber Ph.D. graduates are being attracted and drafted into high-level business executive positions.

STUDIES WORTH IT

Maybe the scraping, saving and plain hard work are worth the degree, after all. Several studies have shown that the average college graduate will earn about $100,000 more in his life than a person who does not attend a university.

Another thing gained from a college education is knowledge and a mode of thinking which cannot be taken away as long as life exists.

AN HONEST MISTAKE?

Talk about a stacked deck—baseball was given as crooked a deal from the bottom of the deck last week, as any card-sharp ever dealt. Cincinnati Redleg fans voted seven of their team to the annual All-Star game, to be held in St. Louis, July 9.

Almost the entire Cincinnati team would have started against the American League All Stars, if Commissioner Ford Frick hadn't taken the unprecedented action of replacing two of the players. It remains doubtful how many of the other five are deserving of starting honors.

MUSIAL WINS

In taking the first action of its kind since the All-Star game began 24 years ago, Frick intended "no reflection on the sincerity or honesty of the Cincinnati poll." Redleg outfielders Gus Bell and Wally Post were the outcast players, being replaced by Giant Willy Mays and Brave Hank Aaron, runners up in the balloting. Stan Musial was the only National Leaguer to beat out a Cincinnati player, George Crowe, undeserving newcomer at first base.

Although the players themselves feel the action of the commissioner justified, one fan admits to voting 800 times with an apparent sense of righteousness.

ADMITTEDLY LEGAL

Admittedly, it is legal for fans to vote more than once, but how would the leagues check on multi-voters even if fans were allowed a single vote? The present system ruins the intended purpose of the All-Star game—honoring the outstanding players of the year—by making it a farce and popularity contest.

Cincinnati fans have proved this by stabbing the National Pastime in the back with their foul tactics and reasoning. With millions more population in the New York City area, it would be possible to have a perpetual subway circuit each year, by the reasoning of Redleg fandom.

Some have advised a mathematical formula to determine qualifications of All-Star representatives. An expensive affair which the leagues probably will not go along with. More logical is to have the people who know—players, coaches, managers and umpires—pick the players.

Along with the need for a new method of picking the players, is the need of a new time to pick them. There isn't much sense in playing a nine-inning game, only to count the score at the end of four innings. Yet, the time of All-Star balloting is a direct parallel to this situation.

NAMES CHOSEN

Players are chosen on less than a half season performance, encouraging voting for "names," rather than better performances by other players in a given year. Only fair method is to choose players at the end, or near the end, of season play.

returned to the king with only two bound volumes telling the complete history of the world. By this time the king was very old and court physicians had given him barely six months to live. The historians gathered around the king's bed and presented him with the two volumes.

The king said he appreciated their efforts, but couldn't spend his remaining months reading history. He then asked for a brief pamphlet, that he might glance over it while resting.

Of course many of the original historians of the work had died and been replaced by others. Among them a young, earnest chap who then stepped out and spoke to the king. "Your majesty," he said, "I can tell you the complete history of the world in eight words."

The king was amazed, but the other historians were struck dumb by this outburst from one they termed a "young pup." Breathlessly the king asked the youth, "Well, what are the eight words?" The young historian's voice said simply, "Men are born, they suffer, and they die!"

ANYWHERE I PONDER

Hugh Nibley, BYU professor and one of the great scholars, has accepted an offer from a four-year-old university of 30 students in Libya. He will lecture in Arabic for one year at the school.

Some students, preferring pops to classical, feel that lyceums, in particular performances of the Paganini Quartet, have been too esoteric for the general student body.

Frank Sinatra and Benny Goodman are enjoyable, but free performances by world-acclaimed artists are even more enjoyable. Same performances at New York's Metropolitan Opera, for instance, would prove very expensive.

Musical performances offered without cost at the Y direct appreciation toward a particular type of music. Listening to hill-billy music, or even pop, would cultivate an appreciation by those not now caring for it.

What better music to emphasize than the enduring works and the artists who present them? Students consistently choose the greater worth to enjoy and preserve.

BYU is a great university directed by great leaders. Quite naturally, considering our beliefs, ideals are as high in music as in other fields. It is an individual responsibility for students to take advantage of opportunities offered in music education outside classrooms.

STORY OF LIFE

Once upon a time, many years ago, a great king whose armies had conquered many lands, decided he wanted to learn more about mankind. He wanted to rule his subjects more efficiently and righteously, and was desirous of preserving his rule for future generations of his blood. He did not want to lose power as had many other great conquerors.

Assembling together the finest historians of the day, he commissioned them to write a complete history of the world, that he might study it and become wise.

The historians immediately began to work finding facts and after many years of research, started to write the history. Almost 20 years passed before they finished the work and presented it to the king.

"Great Caesar," he said, "it would take me 20 years to read this material. Condense it to a more readable size." The historians set to work again and after 15 years, returned to the king with only two wagonloads of books. The king was still dissatisfied and asked them to complete their works in just one or two books.

They would try. After 10 years they again

Plans Underway to Include Family Day as Annual Event

Success of the first Family Day held on the Brigham Young University campus Saturday has prompted plans to make this event an annual part of Leadership Week.

Officers of family organizations throughout the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saint membership met together for classes, an assembly and reunions as a part of Leadership Week.

More than 200 leaders of these family groups gathered on the university campus. Enthusiasm was high concerning the success of the first such meeting and plans are being made to include Family Day as an annual activity according to Harold Glen Clark, dean of Adult Education and Extension Services.

During the general assembly
the importance of family organizations was stressed. The Genealogical Society of the LDS Church has urged LDS families to form such organizations for the purpose of genealogical research and temple work. Archibald F. Bennett, secretary of the LDS Genealogical Society brought out these important points in his talk, "Why Family Organizations."

After the assembly, officers broke up into classes for discussion on various topics of aid and importance for family groups.
Courses of instruction included ways of making family reunions successful, publishing a family newsletter, fund gathering, methods of selecting organization officers and structure of the family organizations.

Saturday afternoon, three family groups held reunions on the campus. Gathering for meet-

SCRIBBLIN'

Spring is heralded on the BYU campus by lower cut dresses, glazed cottons, short sleeve shirts and walking shorts. Summer is really here, however, when a farmboy student studies bare-backed on the lawn, wriggling his toes in the grass.

Observed at Sunday evening patriotic services in Smith Fieldhouse was a gentleman very attentively studying Shakespeare. He didn't even smile at LaMar's jokes.

Lately, there has been quite a controversy about having year 'round schools. Summer school might not be so bad, that is, at grade and high school levels. It is easier and perhaps less hazardous, to get to class bright and early in summer than in January.

Now, if vacations came in wintertime, most of us peasants would be more anxious to return to warm classrooms, inasmuch as it would probably be too difficult to get enough dinero to go to a warmer climate.

Seems reasonable to assume that shorter vacations would be more desirable. Faculty would probably like that, too.

Ever notice the law of supply and demand is all out of kilter in one field? ADVICE.

A lawn, a tree, a lake and a lady make an ideal summertime combination. That is, if they don't get mixed up.

A sermon, if you need one: It's nice to be important, but it's more important to be nice.

Former BYU Student To Train As Air Cadet

A former Brigham Young University student, Dale LeRoy Berge, Half Moon Bay, California, has been selected for flight training as a Naval Aviation Cadet by the Naval Aviation Cadet Office at the Oakland Naval Air Station.

Berge is now awaiting orders to Naval Flight School at Pensacola, Florida. After his 18 months of training and graduation from Advanced Training he will be designated a Naval Aviator, commissioned an Ensign in the U.S. Navy, and will report to an operational flight squadron.

Honor Party Slated

Two Hungarian students recently arrived on campus will be honored at a party and dance Saturday evening by the Foreign Students Club.

The dance, which is open to all summer school students, will be held in the Smith Family Living Center Ballroom at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Katherine Szeremi and Peter Polgar, who fled Hungary last winter and were brought to Brigham Young University by the Hungarian Student Committee will be honored during the affair.

Entertainment will be provided by members of the Foreign Student Club, and Polgar and Miss Szeremi will be introduced. Admission will be 25 cents.

Fuerstner Concert Set

Carl Fuerstner, noted concert pianist and member of the Brigham Young University faculty, will present an all-Spanish program in his first solo concert of the Summer Music Festival July 11 at 9:45 a.m. in Joseph Smith Auditorium.

One of the busiest musicians in the west, Mr. Fuerstner also will play an all-French concert July 31, will perform in a two-piano recital with Robert Brownlee, BYU music faculty member, on July 24, and will play for concerts of five artists during July and August.

Mr. Fuerstner will open his concert Thursday with three old Spanish pieces, "Aria" by Angles, "Rondo" by Rodriguez, and "Sonata" by Soler.

The concert also will include "The Maiden and the Nightingale" from "Goyescas" by Granados, "Spanish Rhapsody" by Liszt, and the first performance in Utah of DeFalla's "Concerto for Harpischord and Five Other Instruments," which was written for the great harpischordist Wanda Landowska.

Mr. Fuerstner, a brilliant concert pianist, is also noted as a composer and conductor. He has appeared over the United States with many leading artists and has concertized as soloist extensively in Europe and America. He was director of the Eastman School of Music and Rochester Opera Workshop for five years and conducted the Cologne Opera.

First Assembly Fetes America

Music, dancing, joking and impersonations brought laughter to the Smith Auditorium during the first student assembly presented summer quarter.

Young Sam, played by Dick Robison, took his father's advice, found Miss America, Carol Christenson, and following the usual course of events, joined the family of Yankee Doodle Dandy.

The assembly was in connection with the July 4 holiday Thursday and displayed a patriotic theme. The story was based on what America means to its citizens. Costuming, scenery and music were in the patriotic order.

SPORTS DESK

By Carolyn Harrison

Fans of the American and National Leagues will have their day as the two All-Star teams clash July 9, in St. Louis. The Cardinals and their lone representative to the National League, Stan Musial, will play host to the thousands of baseball fans in Sportsman's Park and those listening to the hustle over radio and TV.

Because of the controversy created by Cincinnati in choosing the all-star teams, a new system is being devised and worked on by several major league officials.

Fans Selfish

It seems that Cincinnati residents decided that they would be Cincinnati fans instead of National League fans when it came time to vote. The ballot boxes were stuffed with the names of Redleg team members. One man admitted having cast 800 votes.

As a result, Baseball Commissioner Ford C. Frick had to make a few phone calls and had that five members from team was the maximum.

Citizens of Cincinnati became upset and produced an effigy of Frick and hauled it around town.

Close Battle

The American League is a tie more evenly distributed among the teams although it was a battle for the position, specially third base.

Brooklyn manager Walter Winston will pilot the National League All-Stars. Defending championship won last year, the National League will be Bailey, catching; Frank Robinson, left field; Don Hoak, base; Stan Musial, first base and Johnny Temple, second base.

Willie Mays of the Giants, be in center field, Hank Aaron, right field, and Roy Millan, Redlegs, in short position.

Williams Outfielder

Battling for the win for American League under management of Yankee manager Casey Stengel will be Berra, Yankees, catching; key Mantle, Yankees, center field; Al Kaline, Tigers, right field; Harvey Kuenn, Tigers, shortstop; Vic Wertz, Indians, first base; Nelson Fox, White Sox, second base; Ted Williams, Red Sox, left field; and George Kell, Orioles, third base.
